

411US.info Adds Top News and Political News Feeds

July 19, 2012

Roanoke, Virginia

411US.info has added Top News and Political News Feeds to its website, www.411US.info .

Top News presents a quick summary of current news headlines in the center of the page. It links to Top News feeds offered online by CNN, Reuters, and ABC News.

Top Political News presents a quick summary of current political news headlines just below Top News, also in the center of the page. It links to Top Political News feeds offered online by Politico, Fox News, and MSNBC (changing to NBCNews). The headlines are refreshed by the news organizations often during the day. Links are provided so users can click to read a story of interest, or read several of the news organizations stories on their websites. The news organizations are among the leading news organizations and online news providers.

The purpose of 411US.info is to provide a clear, organized way for people to get to information daily using the Internet.

With the addition of the Top News and Top Political News headlines, users can use 411US.info every day as a powerful tool to get to information, while also staying abreast of top news events, and top political events in the 2012 election campaign. These added features provide users additional reasons to use 411US.info every day.

The site is useful for everyone from beginners to power users.

Beginners, who may have little Internet experience or do not feel comfortable navigating the web, will welcome the categorized, well-organized menu. It creates a user-friendly, guided Internet experience for getting information.

At the opposite end of the spectrum, executives and power users can utilize 411US.info to quickly look up information every day, hour, and minute. The site provides these users with a powerful tool to efficiently retrieve information. For these power users, 411US.info serves as a sophisticated, always-on-top bookmark system, allowing rapid movement from one website to another.

For travelers and road warriors, 411US.info provides quick access to travel sites. These users can also look up local information at their destination location, including news, weather, and events. When away from home, travelers can change the zip code to their home zip code to keep up with what's happening in their hometowns.

Jerry Guzi, founder of 411US.info, said, "I created the site to provide a clear, clean, and organized way to retrieve information, on demand. I wanted to provide an information menu that is available to everyone in every state, county, city and town and zip code in the U.S., and that works to find what we want, when we want it."

In addition, 411US.info and the associated linked sites can (with the help of Google Translate!) be translated into French, Italian, German, Spanish, or Japanese ó useful for users whose primary language isn't English ó for example: visitors from other countries while in the U.S.

411US.info is for everyone. Anyone can use 411US.info to have the best information available on the web at their fingertips in a clear, organized, easy-to-use way.
