The websites of the localities in North Carolina provide information for Internet users from beginners to executives to power users to travelers (and road warriors) to students and teachers and moms.

- Beginners, who may have little Internet experience, will welcome the categorized, well-organized menu. It creates a user-friendly, guided Internet experience for getting information.
- Executives and power users can utilize 411US.info to quickly look up information every day, hour, and minute. The site provides these users with a powerful tool to efficiently retrieve information. For these power users, 411US.info serves as a sophisticated, always-on-top bookmark system, allowing rapid movement from one website to another.
- For travelers and road warriors, 411US.info provides quick access to travel sites. These users can also look up local information at their destination location, including news, weather, and events. When away from home, travelers can change the zip code to their home zip code to keep up with what's happening in their hometowns.
- 411US.info is a worthy reference tool for students and teachers. With 411US.info, one can quickly look up the definition of an unfamiliar word, or find a Wikipedia or encyclopedia article on an interesting topic. College students can also use the site to keep up with local news at home.

In addition, 411US.info along with the associated sites can be translated (with the help of Google Translate!) into French, Italian, German, Spanish, or Japanese.

Jerry Guzi, founder of 411US.info, said, "I created the site to provide a clear, clean, and organized way to retrieve information, on demand. I wanted to provide an information menu that works for everyone to find what we want, when we want it."

The websites and the associated linked sites can be translated (with the help of Google Translate!) into French, Italian, German, Spanish, or Japanese - useful for users whose primary language isn't English - for example: visitors from other countries while in the U.S.

Anyone can use 411US.info's local North Carolina websites to have the best information available on the web at their fingertips in a neatly organized and easy-to-use way.
